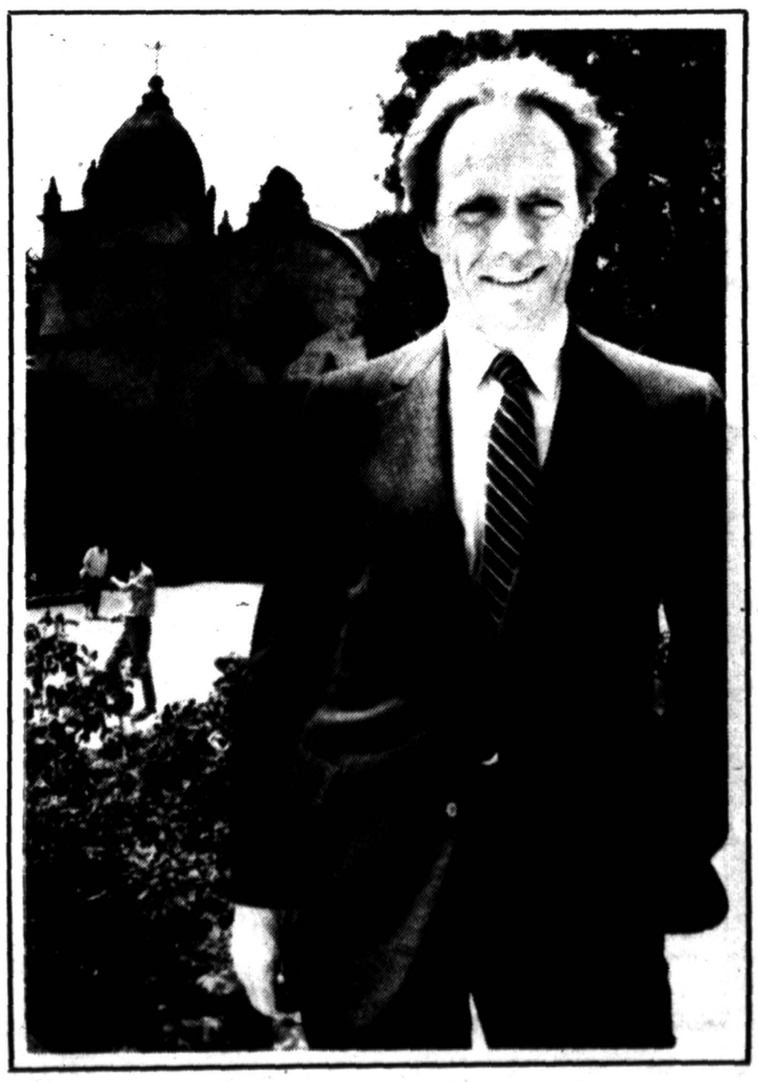
The Carmel Pine Cone

and Carmel Valley Outlook

OUR 75TH YEAR, NO. 52 — December 21, 1989

What a decade it's been

Lasting images of the '80s



AS THE decade draws to a close it becomes important to find images best portraying that era. The Carmel Pine Cone believes that the photographs shown here best portray the spirit and events of the 1980s. On Sept. 17, 1987, Pope John Paul graced the Carmel Mission with a rare appearance. During his visit he strolled through the audience and blessed handicapped participants. This pastoral view of Carmel Valley fails to capture the turmoil that swept this community for several years while a master plan was being readied for adoption. Under a building moratorium for much of the decade, the valley is now able to begin its development in a manner befitting its residents. And who will ever forget the worldwide attention centered on Carmel during the 1986 mayoral campaign that saw famed actor Clint Eastwood running for mayor? The next two years found Carmel under a magnifying glass, as citizens from around the world waited anxiously for Carmel City Council meetings and the next bit of gossip. (Photos by Holly McFarland.)

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Letters to the editor are welcome. Views on all matters are acceptable, following the guidelines of good taste. While there is no limit on length, brevity is encouraged. Enjoyable evening

Dear Editor:

Hats off to Mr. Dick Robins, music instructor at Carmel High School, and his very talented student musicians, for a most enjoyable evening of varied music at Sunset Center.

In their formal dress of tuxedos (long skirts for the "ladies"), the young people exhibited a sophisticated style of professionalism in their poised stage presence as well as in their outstanding renditions. Most of all, they emanated enjoyment and ease in their performances; they appeared to be genuinely pleased to be providing music for an enthusiastic and appreciative audience.

Congratulations to all of them and best wishes for their continued success.

What is Character?

Dear Editor:

The city council, planning commission and informal committees are pondering the important question "What is Carmel's character"?

Based on this question, should a house be big or small, cottage or mansion, one story or two? But houses of themselves have not formed Carmel's character, people have. Carmel has a spirit, a feeling, a way of life all its own. It is an area where people feel and live differently than if they lived anywhere else.

This spirit has come from our history as a town, the people who live and have lived here. People who painted and sculpted and talked and wrote great things and they built their homes to reflect their interests and to disturb this beautiful place as little as possible.

But most importantly has always been our deep spirit of neighborliness and caring for each other. These things have given Carmel its character.

We promote acquisition of parks and open spaces, we protect our beaches, we promote the arts and love our trees. But in the past few years we have allowed certain interests to forever change one of the most important elements that make up Carmel's character — the construction and design of our new homes.

Every home should be judged separately. Does it enhance its neighbors not degrade them? No one should be allowed to build a two-story house in such a way that it shuts out the view and sunshine of a neighbor as was just done in my own neighborhood. This is not the Carmel spirit.

Does it open up vistas not shut them out? Does it lie gently and naturally with the land? Does it respect the wildlife and plant habitat around it? Does it tell you that the designer and the people who live there love Carmel? Does this house strengthen the character of Carmel? Would those who gave Carmel its special spirit be proud?

If it does these things — then it is a good house and the digital numbers, square feet limits and lot setbacks are only secondary.

Power dressing

Dear Editor:

Congratulations to all men who no longer have The Woodpecker Look (Bird) when they appear before an audience. The black coat, the white shirt and a red tie distracts from your facial expression — you have a message, give it, without any part of your clothing screaming for attention.

Remember, always when speaking to an audience in an auditorium, Conference hall, or on television the audience should see: a smile on your lips, a spark in your eye, and not be distracted by a red tie.

Wear red ties to parties or to business, to shop, or work anytime anywhere except when you are a speaker before an audience.

Wasted time

Dear Editor:

Two recent experiences with the Monterey Municipal Court Clerk's office, Aguajito road, really opened my eyes.

First: A close friend of mine received an undated letter postmarked Oct. 11, 1989 from the Municipal Court where she was summoned to appear for jury duty. The letter stated "YOU ARE REQUIRED TO CALL 647-7787 AFTER 5:00 P.M. THE EVENING PRIOR TO THE ABOVE ASSIGNED SUMMONED DATE." There was no above assigned date. Making an inquiry to the court office she received this reply: "Tee-hee-hee, oh! yeah! you are assigned jury duty starting Oct. 30th."

Second: Last week I went to the Municipal Court clerk's office to pay a traffic citation for my daughter. I stood in line behind 15 waiting people. After one hour and 20 minutes, I went to the one of two windows that were supposed to be open. (The open one.) On processing the lady said, "on this I will have to check this with the supervisor."

More waiting. On return she stated "the supervisor is out, have a seat in the hallway, we will call you." No way, I'll call back.

When I left, the waiting line of 20 was backed up to the courthouse entry door. I called the supervisor, she apologized for the delay and said "we are understaffed. The board of supervisors will not allow us to hire additional employees."

From one hour's observation, of the people employed in the clerk's office, my thought was: if you put another person in the office no one could find room to move. Presently they move at two speeds, slow and slower. Thinking of the taxpayers dollar, I would recommend an efficiency expert evaluate the performance capability of the present employees and hire persons capable of giving a day's work for a day's pay. I bet you could reduce the staff by 25 percent and improve operations.

Inhospitable

Dear Editor:

I've been coming to the Asilomar Conference Grounds for math conferences for many years and have always enjoyed dining or shopping in Carmel at some point over the four days that I'm in the area.

This past Sunday I parked in a 30-minute zone to pick up some items in one of my favorite stores, the Game Gallery on Ocean Avenue. After concluding my shopping, I returned to my car to find a $10 parking ticket.

While I did not notice the exact time I parked my car, I do know that I couldn't have been parked for more than 35 minutes. I'm disappointed in this aggressive enforcement on the city's part.

I've resolved to do my shopping and eating elsewhere when I'm in the area from now on. Other localities appear more hospitable from my perspective.

No laughing matter

Dear Editor:

Last Friday I confronted Her Honor the Mayor head-on in the eastbound lane of Sixth Avenue between San Carlos and Dolores. The reason for this confrontation was the westbound lane was completely occupied by trucks making their deliveries.

Of course I deferred to the smiling mayor by partially squeezing between two trucks just enough to let her pass. She was going east and I was attempting to go west around all these trucks.

The situation just described should clearly alert the mayor to the need for a traffic regulation prohibiting tandem parking by delivery trucks in the traffic lanes. This, I'm sure, is a daily occurence in the central commercial district.

Generally speaking, one is not prone to smile after maneuvering around these traffic blockers.

Short-term solutions

Dear Editor:

The new water district board is now considering various short-term improvements to our water supply to mitigate the effects of drought. It is important that whatever actions are taken should not impede the more important goal of building a dam on the Carmel River.

To this end I would advise the board to adhere to three objectives which will enhance the liklihood of completing the dam project: First no monies should unnecessarily be taken from the connection fee fund for short-term projects. Second, staff time which should be concentrated on building the dam should not be wasted on short-term projects. And third, the public's present perception of the urgency of completing the dam should not be diluted by focusing on shorter-term projects other than those which will provide only a little more drought protection until the dam is completed.

These objectives can best be obtained by leaving to the California-American Water Co. the task of bolstering the near-term drought reserves. That corporation has the financial resources, the technical resources and, I think, the obligation to do that. From Cal-Ams report to the Public Utilities Commission in support of its 1988 rate increase application the following can be stated:

1. Cal-Am can deliver in normal years in excess of 22,000 acre feet of potable water each year. Thus there is no need for short-term augmentation in normal years.
2. Cal-Am informed the PUC that it plans to develop additional wells in Seaside to provide 4,000 acre feet of water in normal years and up to 10,000 acre-feet in drought years.
3. Cal-Am informed the PUC that it plans a new well in the upper aquifer in Carmel Valley to produce 2,000 acre feet per year.

I believe a new well near Highway 1 could safely produce another 2,000 acre feet if 1/2 to 1 cubic foot per second were delivered to the lagoon to prevent salinization of the aquifer. Riparian irrigation should also be a requirement near that well. In fact if a well with irrigation had been there now the massive destruction of riparian vegetation presently occurring would have been prevented.

Further, a Cal-Am consultant, James Russell Mount, testified in the PUC hearings on Case 9530 in August of 1986. He stated that the aquifer could be "more efficiently dewatered" in dry years with multiple small-capacity wells than with a few large ones.

One such well between two major wells and near a transmission main to the begonia treatment plant should be tested to determine how much additional capacity could be obtained if this procedure were adopted. The investment to continue such smaller wells between each of Cal-Am's present high-capacity wells could be deferred until the next drought. The wells could be drilled in the river bed as are the two present Scarlett wells.

All that need be done now is to obtain options to drill from the owners of the river bed well sites. Use of the wells should be restricted to drought emergencies. No additional environmental damage would occur since at such times the water table would already be down below the root zones of the riparian vegetation, the river bed would be dry and both susceptible vegetation and young steelhead would be dead or dying.

In addition, the Pebble Beach reclamation plan will initially provide some drought reserves, if completed, without further expenditure by the district.

It should be considered that water developments other than those used in drought years may well result in large expenditures of public money with no net increase in available water. Given the state Department of Fish and Game's public acknowledgement that its only obligation is to maximize benefits to the fisheries, it would be surprising if Fish and Game, the Carmel River Steelhead Association, or others did not request that water from the Carmel Valley aquifer be reduced in amounts equal to new water developed.

The interest of the community would best be served if the water district board were to encourage Cal-Am and the Pebble Beach Co. to proceed post-haste with their plans to increase drought reserves and confine its own major effort to at last get going on the dam.

Rules of the road

Dear Editor:

I'm a local who avidly rides a bicycle through town.

As in the rules of the road, a bicyclist must ride on the right side of the road — but since this area is mostly congested with automobiles and out-of-towners that aren't used to bicycles, it makes it difficult to ride — people carelessly open their car doors without looking first.

I recently had a confrontation like this and almost crashed as someone opened their car door, but we were OK. I called the police station to ask about whose fault it would be when the law is concerned, and they said it's both parties — but it depends on the circumstances.

Now with tinted windows on cars and longer doors, bicycle riders really must be aware. And auto drivers please look before you open your door on these narrow Carmel streets.

1980 — The Decade in Review — 1989

1980

THIS YEAR saw change — and as much resistance to change — in Carmel and Carmel Valley.

1980 began and ended with storms. The beginning storms fed the watershed that was to later swell the Carmel River, causing floods and massive erosion. Storms at year's end raged over approval of the new Carmel Valley Master Plan, an annex and parking for Carmel's library and attempts to kill and stall development in Carmel and the valley.

The year saw many firsts: Barney Laiolo became the first mayor of Carmel elected by the people; Carmel Beach had its first "Surfabout," a two-day surfing competition that attracted thousands, and Carmel Valley High School had its first graduation.

And traditions continued: the Bach Festival; a sand castle contest; local theater productions; a community Christmas carol sing-a-long at Sunset Center; haggling over additions to homes; lazy Sunday afternoons beneath Carmel Valley oaks.

Two phrases — heard and written often around Carmel and the Valley — sum up the traditions: "preserving the rural character of the Valley" and "keeping Carmel for the residents."

Debate continued on the dam proposed for the Carmel River: the Army Corps of Engineers and the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District each had plans to suggest. The second concern: flood control and protecting steelhead trout.

Carmel Planning Director Bob Griggs and Building Inspector Ron Warren both withdrew resignations after city administrator Doug Peterson asked the city council to revert to the previous format for organization of the city's department.

The number of building permits issued in Carmel in 1979 was down nearly 25 percent from 1978 (story ran January 1980).

The financially strapped Carmel Unified School District prepared to auction off half its undeveloped school sites to finance $903,500 in improvements at Carmel High School.

Monterey County Supervisor Sam Farr announced his candidacy for the state Assembly. William Peters was the first to announce his candidacy for Farr's 5th District seat.

A water allocation ordinance was approved by the board of the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District. It was expected to have a more immediate and direct effect on the growth of Carmel Valley than the newly approved Master Plan.

Disappointing end-of-the-year sales figures had Carmel businessmen suggesting a number of reasons, including: parking problems, declining airline service, mediocre merchandise and outside competition.

The Carmel Sanitary District proposed a merger with the Pebble Beach district in hopes of resolving a dispute over the planning and financing of a $13.5 million wastewater reclamation treatment plant.

A controversial preferential parking sticker program for residents began.

Administrators and students at Carmel High School reported the drug use has declined visibly; pot-smoking and pill-popping on campus are rare. Students admitted, however, that marijuana, pills and LSD are easy to obtain off-campus as cigarettes.

The City Council directed City Attorney George Brehmer to prepare lawsuits attacking the new Carmel Valley Master Plan and the use permit given Rancho Canada Lodge. County supervisors said they would fight both suits.

THE NATIONAL Bank of Carmel opened in 1981 to high hopes. Those hopes were crushed in 1984 when the federal government stepped in and closed the bank, leaving depositors and many businesses desperate and frustrated.

A full week of storms wreaked havoc in the area, downing power lines and filling dams to a point of concern.

Newly installed washed aggregate sidewalks cause some residents to protest that creeping "San Jose mediocrity" is taking over Carmel.

Five major ordinances to implement the new Carmel Valley Master Plan were approved by the Monterey County Planning Commission and a sweeping down-zone of 29,000 acre in the valley.

City staff wa asked to bring the city council up to date on the status of the Hodges property being "held" by the city pending arrangements for its use as a corporation yard. It brought to light the fact that the city had already paid $10,000 to the Rosella Hodges Trust while the one plan, the annexation of the property behind the Carmel Mission, was being explored.

Landmark Lands Co. of Oklahoma, the developer of Carmel Valley Ranch, sold the building and marketing rights for its first 140 condominiums, but denied that the company was withdrawing for the project or had financial problems.

Barney Laiolo became the first mayor in the city's history elected by the people, defeating Howard Brunn by a little more than 3 percent, with Mike Brown a distant third.

In order to comply with Coastal Commission recommendations for low- and moderate-cost housing, the city found itself in the position of urging establishment of up to 550 "second kitchens" in single-family dwellings, despite a 1929 ordinance the prohibits them.

The City Council voted to negotiate for the purchase of Piccadilly Nursery. The property had been appraised as high as $400,000.

Carmel Valley High School — formerly Carmel Continuation School — held its first graduation and first for Carmel Valley.

William H. Rand, acting superintendent of the Carmel Unified School District, was named superintendent of the school district. He cited improving employee morale as one of his goals.

INTENSE STORMS during the winter of 1983 left Carmel Beach in shambles, as can be seen here with the crumbling stairway leading to the beach. The beach restoration eventually led to the opening of the beach walkway in 1988.

Superior Court Judge Richard Silver ruled that the new Carmel Valley Master Plan was improperly approved by the Board of Supervisors and ordered an EIR. As a result, the Carmel Valley Ranch appeared to be "dead in the water" and other major developments in the Valley were blocked from advancing. The supervisors had lifted a building moratorium earlier.

Carmel stores continued to close because of rising rents.

The National Bank of Carmel was granted a federal charter 10 months after an application was denied by the California superintendent of banks.

The council endorsed a fee formula for "in-lieu" parking.

The deputy director of the state Transportation Department said tha money — or the lack of it — was the reason that the long-considered Hatton Canyon Freeway "is the farthest from being built that he can remember.

The City of Carmel offered $275,000 for lots on which to expand Harrision Memorial Library.

The City Council adopted a final budget of $3.8 million, which included purchase of the Piccadilly nursery site for $393,500 and additions to the police force.

Despite souring inflation and gloomy national economic forecasts, merchants in Carmel said they were keeping their heads above water — but just barely. The current cost of homes in Carmel ranged from $125,000 to $1 million.

Harrison Memorial Library directors voted to cut off free services to county residents Jan. 1 if the library did not receive county funds by Dec. 1. Meanwhile, the City of Carmel reached a tentative agreement for the city purchase of James Thompson's lots — at $172,500 — for a library annex.

State officials gave Carmel Sanitary District the go-ahead to resume the design phase of its $13.7 reclamation plant.

The City Council "nearly emptied its pockets" when it granted an additonal $14,750 to cultural organizations; the grants cut sharply into the city contingency fund.

The County Board of Supervisors granted final approval to California-American Water Co. for four new wells in Carmel Valley despite protest from opponents. Irrigation around the wells and monitoring were conditions of the approval, imposed by the Monterey Peninsula Water Mangement District.

High School students packed a meeting of the Carmel Unified School District board to ask that sex education courses be reinstated in the schools.

IN 1981, many issues still familiar to Carmel residents were already ongoing this year.

Carmel continued its revision of its general plan, using the much-criticized consultants Earth Metrics. The consultants were roundly trounced for not understanding what was "special" to Carmel.

The most important issue of the election for Monterey Peninsula Water Management District directors was whether or not to build a dam and California-American Water Co. continued to battle complaints that their wells in Carmel Valley were causing erosion. The city also projected that it would soon use up its water allocation just imposed by the water district.

Legal and political battles continued to rage over the Carmel Valley Master Plan and development in the valley, with the city of Carmel in the middle of the fight.

The city of Carmel joined in more legal battle with property owner and entreprenuer Paul Laub over the businesses in his minimall at the Paradise Building.

Businesses complained that they were barely making it and the city continued to develop plans for Piccadilly Park. Proposition 13 and financial woes and declining enrollment plagued the school district.

A controversy raged over whether or not to hire from the outside a new police chief to replace Bill Ellis, who would retire at the end of the year. A petition drive to put Capt. Bob Fischer in the position was mounted.

Calls for better laws to protect trees were generated after the loss of two large pines from damage due to construction.

THE CITY of Carmel continued its legal war to control development in Carmel Valley, the mouth of the valley and Del Monte Forest. A move to annex Carmel Woods failed because the petition did not collect enough signatures. John Hudson, on behalf of the Headlands Preserve Corp., unveiled plans for a 336-unit development with a hilltop hotel above Highway 1 and Point Lobos.

The Harrison Memorial Library cut services to contend with the loss of funds and carried on its negotiations with Monterey County to reinstate funding. The city continued to discuss and develop plans for an annex and possibly underground parking on the lots on the northwest corner of Lincoln Street and Sixth Avenue. The city gave conceptual approval for a joint underground parking venture with the Pine Inn but later scuttled the plan.

Landscaping plans for Piccadilly Park moved along.

The city and the business community had their difficulties. Two business owners, Sam Goldman and Dave Muston, attacked the sign ordinance as arbitrary. John Logan asked that the revised general plan include limitations on certain types of businesses and the general plan advisory committee "declared unanimously" that there were too many retail businesses in Carmel. The committee advocated limitation of commercial expansion.

The city council went on record as unanimously in support of the construction of a freeway, but a group called "Save the Hatton Canyon" garnered 4,000 signatures for its cause. The state board of transportation, after 26 years of debate, is reported ready to rescind the Hatton Canyon Freeway and sell the right-of-way.

On the water front, Carmel avoided exceeding its allocation, using 93 percent of its allotment that year and water district manager Bruce Buel urges the city to adopt conservation measures.

District figures show that the peninsula, without a water supply project, will be at its water limit in 26 years.

Nearing the end

HOLIDAY PARTIES are dwindling away and the big family day is nearly upon us. However, parties do go on just as long as they can squeeze them in.

The Soroptimist Annual Christmas Dinner was held at Fish and Basil in Pacific Grove; Family Service Agency holiday party in the Carmel home of Louise and Jim Keen; art reception for Gail Factor at the Monterey Conference Center Gallery; the Jesters Annual Jolly at the Plaza; Ombudsman's Victorian Christmas at the Old Gallatin Powers Estate, and a smashing black-tie dinner for 60 at stately Stonepine just one week before Christmas.

Memories of the beautiful Symphony Guild "Nutcracker Ball" linger on. Memories of the large lighted nutcrackers greeting guests as they entered MPCC. A theme carried out with centerpieces of wooden nutcrackers set in attached boxes with holiday floral arrangements. All were sold almost as soon as guests sat down for dinner. These gorgeous decorations were designed by Mrs. B.J. Graham.

Music was provided by Richard LaSalle & Band and Guild president Marie-Therese Taylor sang I Give You Love. Maestro Clark Suttle (now in Europe with his wife, Pia, for the holidays), not only played jazz bass for one number with the band but he danced. Traditionally, as you must know, conductors just don't dance. But Sue Dewar convinced him to make an exception. It was a festive evening with the largest attendance (175) in 21 years.

The best kind of Christmas party involves the whole family. And, as I have stated before, the best holiday party is the one given by Children's Services Center in Pacific Grove. This popular party has outgrown the CSC and it was moved over to the PG Community Center this year. What fun — with parents and children from all over the area. Children playing happily together, nibbling cookies and adults carefuly watching so as not to step on any of the little ones.

Carol Biddle (director of CSC), said the party is a once-a-year chance for adoptive families, vounteers and board members to get together, have a good time and celebrate all that has been accomplished during the year.

In 1989 CSC filled dreams for a number of adoptive families; the Cypress Chapter Educational Fund (started only three years ago), is assisting seven students in college and six in junior college (UCLA, UC Davis and U. of Utah among them). They are looking forward to the first college graduate soon. The goal of the auxiliary is to match the educational funds which are gained from the Laguna Seca projects.

This educational program is the first in the country and is being closely studied by other groups. Also, a video movie on adoptions made by the center is being used all over the USA and Canada. CSC had a lot to celebrate.

Prominent Carmel artist Gail Factor welcomed a record turnout at the reception given in her honor at the Monterey Conference Center. Art buffs and intellectuals (seldom seen on the glittering social landscape) from all communities in the area made up those interested in this impressive artwork.

Her large landscape oils (devoid of life), show the expansiveness of the West. They somehow escape the feeling of loneliness through the harmony of color and the incredibly beautiful skies. Each and every piece draws and holds the eye. My favorite was called "Seaward."

Only two from Gail's recent show in San Francisco are shown. The rest came out of her Carmel studio more recently and all will be on display through mid February only.

Legal types Barbara Berlitz and Gael Gallant, who share offices celebrated their second year on Forest Ave. in the last-home-town with a party for "the Gang." They all have December birthdays: Gael, the 14th, Rick Grumbecker, the 13th; Neal Owens, the 19th; and Barbara and Mary Margaret O'Connell, the 30th. That's a lot of Capricorns and Sagittariuses working and playing together harmoniously. No gifts, except for stuffed toys going for kids at the Battered Women's Shelter.

It is interesting to find out that immediately after the earthquake Barbara was flooded with requests for making wills, trusts, etc. That's the way people are. They need a good shake-up to make them think of the uncertainty of life.

The annual Christmas Party of the 40-year-old Family Service Agency held in the Carmel home of Louise and Jim Keen brought out the board members, staff and supporters.

The party featured the presentation of a public service video promoting the individual, couple, family and group counseling services. It was made by Marie Wainscoat who received a Certificate of Appreciation for her work. Special recognition was given the MP Volunteer Services for the Annual Fall Sale to benefit FSA. Dorothy O'Connor is executive director of the agency.

The first month of the new decade begins with a social dilemma. A big decision for all you social-lights of the MP for Jan. 20, 1990. The great Paul Anka returns for his concert at Santa Catalina and you must reserve by Jan. 10th ($75 for reception and concert). If you add dinner and dancing afterwards add a $100). That same evening over at the Sheraton Monterey The March of Dimes "Gourmet Gala Sails Away." Decisions, decisions.

Paul Anka brings his rocking, rollicking Las Vegas-type show and it's always a shame to miss it. The Gourmet Gala is a big drawing card heavily ladened with celebrity chefs. This year: Brooke Shields, Jaclyn Smith, Pat Morita, Ruth Buzzi, John Clark Gable, Chad McQueen, Giselle McKenzie, Brooks and Kate Firestone, and on and on. PLUS a surprise guest set to knock your eyes out. But I am not allowed to reveal the name — YET.

Going from port-of-call to port-of-call (the designer kitchens) will be an impressive list of judges. Jeremiah Tower (Stars, SF), Betsy Balsley (LA Times), Robert Bussinger (Ventana Inn), Vicky Sebastiani (Viansa Winery), Henry Lapuyade (Charcuterie Francaise, SF), Bryan Miller (NY Times), Lois Swan (LA Times) and returning judges Craig Claiborne, Tim Zagat, James Villas and Bert Cutino. All this fun followed by a 12-course dinner and dancing. ($150)

Positive Thoughts

Herman & Miriam Fickewirth

TEN RULES FOR ENDING RESENTMENT

FIRST: When anyone hurts you, put "spiritual iodine" on the wound at once. That is, pray hard about it. If you do not do this, it will fester.

SECOND: If resentment has hardened in your thoughts, apply grievance drainage. That is, open your mind and let the grievance flow out.

THIRD: Do this by unburdening yourself to a trusted counselor or write a letter to the person against whom you have the resentment. Then tear it up and while holding the pieces in your hand pray for the person and forgive him.

FOURTH: Become fully aware of the harm resentment can do to you, even to making you ill. Think of that whenever a hate thought comes.

FIFTH: Don't stop with forgiving a time or two. Do it, if necessary, seventy-times seven—490 times to be literal.

SIXTH: Thinking about forgiving is not enough. You must come to a specific moment when you say, "With God's help I now forgive (insert name of person)."

SEVENTH: Repeat the Lord's Prayer inserting your offender's name, "Forgive me my trespasses as I forgive....."

EIGHTH: Pray for the other person, asking specific blessings for him, especially concerning matters which have previously annoyed you the most.

NINTH: Speak in a kindly and complimentary manner and as often as possible about the person against whom you harbor antagonism.

TENTH: Make a sincere study of the personality factors which created an unhappy relationship so that the "mistake pattern" in yourself may not recur.

scaping plans. Voters rebuffed plans for an underground garage, new library and park at Sunset Center and moving city hall into Harrison Memorial Library.

Doug Schmitz, then assistant city manager of Bellevue, Wash., was hired as city administrator and city hall departments were reorganized. Amidst questions of whether or not recreation in Carmel is important and if the cultural commission should take over the duties, a recreation committee and program is established.

The Harrison Memorial Library plans for an annex ran into trouble and the council asks to investigate using the Rittmaster building versus an extension across Lincoln Street. A new plan for underground garage at the annex site was thrown out by the council.

At the end of the year, the city council approved revisions to the general plan, except for the Housing Element because of controversy over second units. The city council, placed what The Pine Cone called "its latest moratorium," this time of second-story homes. A The special committee to develop recommendations for Mission Trail Park said the city should not sell Flanders Mansion.

A California Department of Transportation hearing in Carmel on Hatton Canyon Freeway was labeled "a charade" by opponents of the freeway. They said the department had already made up its mind.

After 16 years, Bruna Odello received permission from the Coastal Commission to develop her land south of Rio Road when the commission approved the Carmel Area Local Coastal Plan. The city filed suit against the state of California and Monterey County over the development.

The Carmel Unified School District was "awash in red ink" and had organization problems.

The Monterey Peninsula Water Management District was charged with just doing studies and not taking any action and Carmel Valley property owners "forsook their pocketbooks" and voted to rehabilitate the river by creating the Carmel River Management Zone.

It appeared that feds would not help fund the Carmel Sanitary District's proposed reclamation plant, a potentially fatal blow. The news, it was reported, was welcomed by the Pebble Beach Community Services District, which opposed the project.

Frank Lloyd, a well-known Carmel resident and city councilman dies.

Carmel City Attorney George Brehmer resigns. He "established a well-deserved reputation as an arch enemy of developers in Carmel Valley," the paper states.

The first Carmel code enforcement officer is appointed.

Supervisor Bill Peters stirred up controversy when he stated that Carmel Valley Ranch has a "vested right" to water supplies. The water district board votes that if the "so-called" Tularcitos aquifer has water, 30 acres of the development cannot be annexed to Cal-Am.

The Carmel Valley Property Owners Association filed a suit against the development of a 100-room hotel at Carmel Valley Ranch.

The Carmel City Council agreed to form a task force to prepare for the "inevitable multitudes" that would flock to the city if Father Junipero Serra is canonized. With rumors flying, the possibility of a visit by Pope John Paul caused great excitement and forecasts of an "astronomical" effect on the city.

1984

IT TURNED out to be nothing like George Orwell's nightmare, but it still had a flavor of its own.

This was the year that councilmembers David Maradei and Helen Arnold appealed the planning commission's approval of Clint Eastwood's proposed building on San Carlos Street. A new group, the Carmel Property Owners Association, first composed mainly of innkeepers, started gaining political clout, the recently revised general plan its main target.

It was the year the National Bank of Carmel was closed by the federal government, shattering some businesses, leaving others in limbo and taking many Carmel residents savings with it. Lawsuits against the bank proliferated.

Turmoil at the Carmel Unified School District hit the front pages when it became the focus of bitter controversy over Superintendent William Rand's resignation. The school board was threatened with a recall. Teachers picketed for more money.

Carmel Planning Director Bob Griggs retired.

The Harrison Memorial Libary annex plans limped along. Businesses protested a proposal to expand the library into Lincoln Street, which would close the thoroughfare. The city council wondered if the library board of trustees should spend its money on services instead. Later in the year, architectural plans for an annex across the street from the library were unveiled.

The city purchased the third lot for senior citizen housing complex on the corner of Dolores Street and Fifth Avenue.

Phase One of the beach restoration was completed and the city began its battle with Craig McFarland over his seawall. Questions were raised whether it had gone through the proper city process.

Highway 1 to Big Sur reopened.

The city council accepted the Housing Element with provisions that second kitchens should be legalized. Later, the council put off an ordinance that would implement that provision.

Charlotte Townsend is re-elected mayor.

The council began approval the implementing ordinances for the general plan, including a rezone of the commercial district. In a six-hour "marathon meeting", the council endured "name-calling" and "open threats of recall."

The planning commisson recommended that the city council adopt an ordinance to ban all new "visitor accomodations" in the city. City attorney Don Freeman said the proposed ordinance may be illegal.

City administrator Doug Schmitz is taken to task for his "Friday letters," weekly secret memos to the city council on a number of issues.

Work was started on Piccadilly Park. The new summer recreation program was declared a success with 300 children and "a number of senior citizens" as participants.

Carmel filed a lawsuit against the county over the "rezone" of Mission Ranch that would allow its development. The city said the county should have required in EIR first.

At the end of the year, the city joined with Tescher-LeVett, Inc. to buy the Gamble Estate for $1.4 million.

The Pebble Beach Community Services District announced plans for a reclamation plant in direct competition with Carmel Sanitary District's project. CSD learned that it will get no federal grant funds for its project.

Carmel goes to court over the Carmel Valley Master Plan.

Ansel Adams died at the age of 82.

The Monterey Peninsula Water Management District ups its connection charge tenfold to raise money for the proposed dam.

The Big Sur Local Coastal Program is adopted to the praise of environmentalists.

The Olympic torch is carried through Carmel and the peninsula on its way to Los Angeles.

PBCSD Manager Stan Kawa called "groundless" fears that Pebble Beach Co.'s proposed Spanish Bay Resort will leave PB residents and property owners without enough water or sewage capacity, but admits the facilities for those services are limited. The company hopes the PBCSD reclamation project will alleviate the problem.

Karin Strasser Kauffman is elected to Supervisor William Peters' board seat.

The Sierra Club announced opposition to any development on Michael's Ridge, including Point Lobos Ranch. Supervisor William Peters had proposed an amendment to the coastal plan to allow the development. A lawsuit is filed to sharply reduce a proposed El Sur Ranch development. The Big Sur Land Trust launched a campaign to buy redwood lands threatened with logging.

1985

ICE CREAM, conflicts over Spanish Bay, and Clint Eastwood versus the city of Carmel marked 1985.

A denial of an ice cream parlor permit brought national attention to Carmel as the city that banned ice cream, though it was sold in many other parts of town. The Los Angeles Times asks if Carmel is "Scrooge City."

turned its approval of Clint Eastwood's proposed retail/office complex on San Carlos Street and the city council backed them up. The result: Eastwood sued the city but late in the year both parties reached an agreement that would allow the project to proceed.

The city council voted to file a lawsuit against the proposed Spanish Bay resort. The case is dismissed by Monterey County Superior Court Judge John Anton. The project continues to run into roadblocks, however, particularly when the Pebble Beach Community Services District also runs into problems because of county stipulations. The proposed reclamation plant was opposed by the county and city of Carmel. The city council considers closing 17 Mile Drive gate.

The council secretly offered $3.7 million for Mission Ranch as part of an out-of-court settlement over development of the property, but the developers said they would prefer to proceed with their plans. Negotiations continued.

The city won another lawsuit when Monterey County Superior Court Judge Richard Silver ruled that the Carmel Valley Master Plan did not meet the mandates of the California Environmental Quality Act.

City hall was remodeled.

Piccadilly Park opens quietly. It's total price tag, including the land, was about $500,000.

The Little family was denied a use permit to rebuild the Carmel Sands Motel, though they obtained permission to demolish the existing structure.

After an environmental impact report, numerous plans and much debate, the city council settled on a plan for a Harrison Memorial Library annex on the northwest corner of Lincoln Street and Sixth Avenue with underground parking and public restrooms. Cost estimate: $750,000 from the library board for the building and $600,000 for the parking and restrooms.

The council begins putting plans in motion for more public restrooms, including a facility at Devendorf Park. It also unveils plans for a 15-unit low-cost senior citizen housing complex on Dolores Street.

Carmel Unified School District boardmembers Robert Fenton, Susan Bromfield and James Yates lost a bitter recall election. Bob Infelise is selected as the new school district superintendent.

A specific plan for R-4 district is unveiled. It is intended to produce better design and more open space, Carmel Planning Director Diane White said.

The city begins a comprehensive study of the commercial district.

The city grossed about $850,000 on the sale of its four Gamble Estate lots. The city had reduced the number of building sites on the property after its purchase.

The beach walkway EIR is completed and it is expected to take about one year to build the project.

Carmel uses about 97.5 percent of its water allocation and the council strengthened its own water conservation ordinance maps out the city's own allocation program for development.

"EASTWOOD'S ELECTION as mayor top story of '86," the Year in Review headline states, and it certainly was that.

When Clint Eastwood announced he would challenge then-Mayor Charlotte Townsend in her bid for a third term, the world took notice. From all corners of the globe, the media descended on Carmel en masse. Two candidates drop out of the race to back him, local musicians wrote songs about the race.

A "mysterious" telephone poll was conducted and the League of Women Voters investigated charges of voter fraud, aimed at Eastwood supporters. A special media center at Sunset Center is set up to handle the election coverage.

The vote was overwhelming: Eastwood received 2,166 votes to Townsend's 799. Eastwood stated he wanted to take the government out of the hands of the few and put it into the hands of the many.

In the meantime, the Pebble Beach Community Services District's plans for a reclamation plant are cancelled when the Pebble Beach Co. backs out financing through an assesment district. The company took the stance to comply with conditions on a permit for transportation of fill dirt for its Spanish Bay project. Consultant Frank Dryden completed his report that recommends a reclamation plant at Carmel Sanitary District.

The new city council drops its lawsuits against the Odello project and Spanish Bay. It votes to sell Flanders Mansion and gave final approval to the Devendorf public restrooms.

The Coastal Commission grants a permit for the 9,000-square-foot Stuart property on Carmel Point across from Carmel River beach.

An annual report on water usage showed that residential use increased while commercial use dropped. City council meetings must be moved to the Carmel Woman's Club because of the crowds most of which are there to see Eastwood.

Eastwood campaign worker David Archer is charged with the Pebble Beach murder of Pacific Grove resident Raymond Podell.

The Friends of Photography announce they will leave Carmel for a new location in San Francisco.

The Eastwood council sets up a committee to review and revise the general plan.

Robert D'Isidoro received a use permit to develop the former Grunion Run restaurant site on Fifth Avenue between San Carlos and Mission streets.

The council votes to "fire" the old planning commission and replace it with Eastwood's nominees. The commission, before it is ousted, votes on an ordinance that would permit the sale of ice cream cones.

Carmel versus the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District became a big story when the district imposed an emergency water meter connection moratorium on the city after after Calfornia-American Water Co. figures showed that the city has exceeded its allocation.

The district lifted the moratorium when revised figures put the city under its limit by one percent. The Carmel City Council scrambles to enact its own form of a building moratorium and challenges the district's allocation program as out of date and inequitable. The district decided to "investigate" the allocation program. The city council voted to file a lawsuit against the district over the allocation system.

The district board approves an election in 1987 on the proposed New San Clemente Dam. The election could be just "advisory" because the district does not have permits for the project.

Supervisor Karin Strasser Kauffman and many Big Sur residents opposed Sen. Pete Wilson's proposed bill to federalize Big Sur. The board of supervisors unanimously approve the Carmel Valley Master Plan EIR. It begins public testimony on the supplemental plan that will replace the Carmel Valley Master Plan rejected by the court.

Eastwood buys Mission Ranch late in the year to save it from development.

A town hall meeting is heralded by "blue sheets" that lists concerns over some of the administrations decisions and policies.

1987

POPE JOHN Paul's visit to Carmel Mission, a devastating fire in Pebble Beach and land use issues dominated the news in 1987.

It was a busy year.

Pope John Paul's one-day visit to the Carmel Mission brought the Secret Service to Carmel, hundreds of visitors and worldwide media to the peninsula. The visit was preceded by months of preparation and on the day of the visit, roads were closed for security and the pope was flown-in from the airport by helicopter. The pontiff conducted Mass at BARNEY LAIOLO, here with his wife Elinor, in 1981 became the first elected mayor of Carmel. He was later defeated by Charlotte Townsend. Elinor Laiolo was elected to the council in 1986.

Laguna Seca. He was greeted by Mayor Clint Eastwood and other city council members.

The night sky was lit up and 32 homes were destroyed when a raging forest fire, ignited by an illegal campfire in the S.F.B. Morse Botanical Gardens, swept through a portion of Pebble Beach. Residents were evacuated at the last minute, but no lives were lost.

The Carmel Planning Commission begins to take public comment on proposed changes to the general plan and the first hearing draws about 140 vocal people, mostly protesting the loosening of restrictions in the Land Use Element.

Controversy and public comment on the general plan continue throughout most of the year. Other controversial projects on the planning commission agenda were the Countess Kinnoull estate plan and the Louise Bennett property.

Residents protest that a EIR should be done on the Bennett property, though the planning commission and city council vote against requiring the report. It later changes that vote and an EIR is compiled.

Citizens also protest the plan to sell Flanders Mansion and the Martin Way property in Mission Trail Park. A committee is formed to study uses for the city-owned property.

The planning commission's revised R-4 specfic plan, which increased density from to 66 units per acre in portions of the zone, sparks more packed meetings where the plan is attacked by residents. However, the specific plan includes tougher provisions for open space and setbacks.

The protests lead to the city proposal to buy the largest piece of developable land in the R-4 zone, the Handley property. A postcard survey of Carmel voters by Mayor Clint Eastwood reveals most residents want the city to buy the site.

The controversies gave rise to the Carmel Residents Association, which started as the group that issued mysterious "blue sheets" the year before.

The planning commission imposes a moratorium on new second stories in the commercial district after a rash of applications, mostly from property owners Bob and Ted Leidig. The commission begins to develop tougher design standards for second stories.

The city settles its lawsuit against the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District over the allocation system provided the district conducts an EIR on the program and increases the districtwide allocation by 100 acre feet until the report is completed. The EIR runs into difficulties, after months of work, the consultant is fired. A new group is hired to do the report.

The Carmel Planning Commission finds that a proposed 1,200-seat auditorium to be built at Sunset Center is too large for Carmel and not in compliance with the general plan. Virginia Stanton had offered to donate $1 million to the project.

The city council dumps plans for a Harrison Memorial Library annex at Lincoln Street and buys the Crocker Bank building on Mission Street to remodel into an annex.

A postcard survey by Eastwood comes back stating that 73 percent of the respondents were if favor of building the beach walkway. The council decides to proceed with the project.

The city pursued a multi-level garage at Sunset Center and received proposals for the project. Originally, the city considered only one contractor plans but opened it up to others after protests. The council decided to conduct an EIR on the project at the urging of residents. Parking problems remained an issue throughout the decade.

The council changed the plans for a senior citizen housing complex on Dolores Street, upping the number of units to 24 units from the originally planned 15. It added a city-owned underground parking garage to the project.

Monterey County Superior Court Judge Richard Silver lifts a 8-year injunction against development in Carmel Valley and county planning begins to figure out how to implement the Carmel Valley Master Plan.

A proposed state parking lot at Monastery Beach is protested by residents.

The water district runs into more trouble when the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency asked that it rewrite its enviromental reports on the proposed New San Clemente Dam. An advisory vote on the project comes in 2-1 in favor of pursuing the dam as the main water supply project for the peninsula. There is a divisive election and the "enviromentalist" candidates lose.

THE PROPOSED Hatton Canyon Freeway became the big story this year, water rationing began and Mayor Clint Eastwood decides against running for a second term.

During the fall the Hatton Canyon Freeway received the blessing of the state Coastal Commission during an emotionally charged hearing in San Francisco.

In essence the Coastal Commission's ruling addressed environmental concerns in the coastal zone and allowed Caltrans to move ahead with plans.

1989 — The Year in Review — 1989

THERE COULD be no doubt in anyone's mind that the principal story in Carmel for 1989 was the peninsula's ever-dwindling water supply.

As the area enters an unprecedented fourth dry year, the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District struggles with tough decisions throughout the year.

The water district's problems are exacerbated by charges of conflict of interest aimed at Chairman Nick Lombardo.

In January, the board considers imposing 40-percent water rationing, but opted to stay at 20 percent.

While a popular decision politically, the remainder of the year saw the board change direction from pro-development to a stance of peninsula-wide conservation after a November election.

The first action of new boardmembers during their December meeting saw a halt on any new water connections until a public hearing takes place in early January.

As an aside, at press time, the month of December had seen zero rainfall, normally the beginning of the area's wet season.

Charging that the proposed Hatton Canyon Freeway would distrupt environmentally sensitive areas, a legal action is filed against the state Coastal Commission for approving plans for the $27 million project.

The future is here and now is a good time to pause in our pursuit of happiness and just be happy. The trouble with the future is that it usually arrives before we are ready for it. Ready or not, I wish a Merry Christmas and a healthy happy 1990 to you all.

Financing Your Future

Q. I'm retiring this year and will have the choice of an annuity or lump-sum payout. Which one should I choose?

A. There's a tax trade-off to consider. If you choose an annuity, tax is deferred until you actually receive payments. If you choose a lump-sum pay-out, the amount may qualify for special tax treatment.

Generally installment options work best when the lump-sum distribution would exceed $316,000. Lump-sum payments make sense when you have income other than the pension that exceeds $60,000 a year. However, these guidelines may not match your financial picture.

Your decision rests on whether or not the after-tax amount available from a lump-sum distribution will generate a cash-flow that matches or exceeds installments provided by the annuity. However, ultimately it will depend on your personal choice.

From Santa KLAU(s) to Carmel jazz

SINCE THIS is my last column of the year, I'd like to take the opportunity to wish you and your dear ones a happy and high-spirited holiday season! As for the radio stations on the agenda this week, what could be more appropriate than KLAU(s), for starters?

Steve Adams owns both KMBY (featured in my Sept. 14 column) and KLAU 1540 AM. Try to follow this: KLAU used to be KNZS, which was a news/talk format; the new unique format is known as Kool Gold rock, 80 percent of which is from 1955 through 1963. The other 20 percent is from the late 1940s (the roots of rock, rhythm and blues) up to the late '60s. Got that? (You'll be tested later).

These sounds are coming to us 24 hours a day, 7 days a week (except when the Golden State Warriors and San Francisco Giants games are on), and you can even call 1-800-433-KOOL to make requests or dedications.

Kool Gold includes a large body of music that has not been on the radio for more than 20 years, and many of the early blues, R & B and doo-wop recordings were not widely played when they were new songs. Many of the songs you'll hear on Kool Gold fit in with today's lifestyle; give it a try!

Kool Gold and KMBY are heavily involved in the community, most recently in Project Santa. They're going on 5 decades of rock-n-roll — rock on! You can reach them at 647-7500.

KRML 1410 AM..."where the sounds of jazz fill the air..." is owned by Wisdom Broadcasting Co. (Gilbert Wisdom, general manager), and has been licensed locally since 1958. It's always been "Carmel-oriented," although it's seen many changes through the years, from rock to classical to religious. About five years ago, it went through its last change to an all-jazz format, what their DJs refer to as "straight-ahead jazz." (Yikes, I neglected to ask what that means.)

Weekends are devoted to specialized jazz programming and ethnic jazz, the latter including blues, Latin jazz and Dixieland, and Ed Crankshaw, operations manager, believes KRML is the only peninsula station offering Sunday morning religious programming.

Ed is also the Dixieland DJ and belongs to the Monterey Bay Hot Jazz Society as well as the Jazz-Art Committee, and volunteers at the annual Dixieland Monterey event each year. The station is involved in the Monterey Jazz Festival, and for the past three years, has broadcast the High School Jazz All Stars directly from the main stage of the festival. The station is also involved in the Monterey Bay Blues Festival at the Monterey Fairgrounds each year.

Some of you may recall that, sometime around 1970, Mr. Eastwood (Clint, that is, but you knew that), was looking for a radio station to "star" in the Play Misty For Me movie and, you guessed it, KRML was the winner of the role. KRML's afternoon DJ had the honor and privilege of sharing on-air techniques with Mr. Eastwood (now, where was I when this was going on? Lucky guy!)

They are the only AM jazz source in the entire state of California, and are one of three all-jazz stations in California, the other two being FM. For that matter, at last count, there were only about 21 all-jazz stations nationwide, so KRML is definitely unique!

KRML tries to honor requests when they can (call them at 624-6431), and they maintain a jazz hotline at 625-5598 which provides weekly information on jazz events and happenings from San Francisco to LA.

Well, it's time for me to wish...A Merry Christmas to All, and to All a Good Buy!

(This bi-weekly column is a service of the Monterey Peninsula Chamber of Commerce "Buy Peninsula First" campaign, a joint project of the Economic Development Committee and the Small Business Committee. Readers are invited to submit their thoughts and suggestions in writing to "Buy Peninsula First", c/o the Monterey Peninsula Chamber of Commerce, P.O. Box 1770, Monterey, CA 93940.)

Use toll-free line for park reservations

There is a toll-free telephone number for making reservations at California State Parks through the MISTIX reservation system — 1-800-444-7275.

Reservations from out-of-state callers will still be made through the toll number of 1-619-452-1950.

The toll-free number is not only for state park camping reservations, but also for Hearst Castle tours.

Youth Basketball team formed

Boys and girls in grades three through eight have until Dec. 29 to register for the 1990 Youth Basketball League organized by the YMCA of the Monterey Peninsula.

Registration hours are 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. at the YMCA, 600 Camino El Estero in Monterey, or call 373-4167. League play begins Jan. 13. Volunteer coaches and referees are needed.

Park for free in Monterey

The City of Monterey has removed the one-hour parking meters from the first floor of the West Custom House Garage located at Tyler and Del Monte streets downtown. The first floor has been converted to a free one-hour maximum time limit, with the exception of two 24-minute and one handicapped space.

Volunteer gardeners sought

The City of Monterey Parks Division is in need of volunteer gardeners to work in city parks. The volunteers are led by Sandra Forman and meet 9 a.m. to noon Tuesdays at the French Consulate historic adobe, Franklin Street and Camino El Estero, Monterey. Bring your energy. Tools and materials will be provided. For details, call 646-3860.

TAKE MY WORD FOR IT

By D. Patrick Gallagher

Heady subjects

READING FACES was an art practiced for centuries in China and came from there to Europe and finally to the U.S. in the 18th century.

Two words we use today take their meaning from this art form. People possessing high foreheads were considered reserved, aloof, loyal and shy, while those with low foreheads were considered easy going, friendly but also, not inclined to think much. Hence, we have the words highbrow and lowbrow.

Other bits of vocabulary which concern the head find their origins in the popular practice of wearing wigs. Because the English wore wigs, Americans wore them too. Each wig required a proper fit and to accomplish this a man's head was first shaved and then measured by a carver who finally shaped a block of wood to match the head exactly. The man's wig was then custom made on this blockhead. Later anyone with the appearance of an inanimate brain was referred to as a blockhead. Said Alexander Pope in his Essay On Criticism,

The bookful blockhead, ignorantly read, with loads of learned lumber in his head.

If the gentleman for whom the wig was being made were especially important, his wig was made larger than the average one and more elaborate, with curls and waves. From this practice comes our term bigwig. This term, often associated with pomposity, was best illustrated by British musician and artist Gerald Berners. A wife of a friend complained to him that during a visit to a local restaurant a maitre'd had not shown her and her husband immediately to a table. "We had to tell him who we were," she exclaimed. Berners inquired with feigned interest, "And who were you?"

The difference between wigs was lost on Christopher Morely, an American writer whose best known work is Kitty Foyle. When asked to choose between two similar wigs, he observed, "They are as alike as toupees in a pod."

Wigs contributed to other surprising areas of western culture, for example, the first powder rooms were provided for men, not women. Wigs lost their powder at dances requiring a place, from time to time, for gentlemen to re-powder them. During the period when wigs were in favor, so also was bowing to ladies and, if not careful, gentlemen might too exuberantly flip their wigs.

Moustaches and beards frequently adorned men's faces. They were often considered evidence of virility, presumably by those who wore them. There is a story concerning John Drew, a much-admired, turn of the century comedy star, who was required to shave off his moustache for a part in Rosemary. Soon afterward, he met an acquaintance on the street, but failed to recognize him. The acquaintance however recognized Drew, stopped him and said, "Mr. Drew, I'm afraid you don't recognize me without your moustache."

Hats were also more popular in the 18th and 19th centuries than today and the expression a hat trick refers to the antics of an Irishman at the Court of St. James in the reign of Queen Victoria. On two occasions he refused to remove his hat in the presence of the English Queen as custom demanded. On the third occasion, when he again failed to remove his hat, Queen Victoria advised him that at their next meeting he could choose between having his hat or his head removed. A hat trick now refers to the completion of a difficult task three consecutive times.

The lore of hats abounds. "And all your fortune lies beneath your hat," is the admonition given to a friend about to leave the university (John Oldham), and "No one knows how ungentlemanly he can look, until he has seen himself in a shocking bad hat" (Robert Smith Surtees).

Gypsy Rose Lee, who it seems was an accomplished seamstress, once purchased a hat from a famous milliner, Mr. John, and was so taken with it that she immediately took it apart and made several copies which she distributed to her friends. Mr. John was not amused. To add insult to injury, within a week he received a call from Gypsy complaining that the hats she had copied were simply incomplete without labels and would he mind providing her with half a dozen. The labels arrived shortly. They read, "A Mr. John design stolen by Gypsy Rose Lee." Gypsy unhesitantly placed one inside each hat.

Lord William Nuffield, the British car manufacturer (Morris), recalled upon his departure from a dinner at Oxford that the porter produced his hat so quickly that Nuffield asked doubtfully how the porter knew it was his. "I don't, m'lord," answered the porter, "but it's the one you came in with."

Finally, H.G. Wells put the topper on all this talk of hats and heads when he left a Cambridge dinner unintentionally taking the hat belonging to his host. The hat fit so comfortably and he liked it so much, he decided to keep it and wrote to the erstwhile owner whose name appeared inside the brim, "I stole your hat; I like your hat; I shall keep your hat. Whenever I look inside I shall think of you and your excellent sherry and the town of Cambridge. I take off your hat to you."

You don't have to be an American to die of a heart attack.

You also don't have to overeat. Or consume excessive amounts of cholesterol. Or ignore high blood pressure. Or smoke. But that's what a large segment of this country's population does. And that's one reason the United States has the highest incidence of heart attack in the world. At the American Heart Association, we're trying to help Americans change the way they live. And die.

SENIOR LINE

By 'Les' Lesser

AIDS and insurance

AS OF January 1989, the California Legislation allows Acquired Immunodeficiency Syndrome (AIDS) related blood testing when applying for Life and/or Disability Insurance.

Different companies have different requirements as to when the testing must be done. To date, the HIV Antibody Test cannot be required to determine eligibility for health insurance. For this reason many insurance companies are adding a life insurance provision to health insurance policies.

If the company requires an HIV Antibody Test, you will need to sign a "Notice and Consent for AIDS-related Blood Testing" form. This form indicates that to evaluate your insurability for life insurance, a sample of your blood is necessary to determine the presence of antibodies to the Human Immunodeficiency Virus (HIV).

A combination of a screening test and a confirmatory test for those who show evidence of antibodies to the virus is performed by a licensed laboratory. The consent form advises that a person may seek pre-test counseling to become informed concerning the interpretation of results and the implications of such a test.

The test is not a test for AIDS: It is a test for antibodies to the HIV virus, the causative agent for AIDS, and shows whether you have been exposed and infected by the virus. A positive test does not mean that you already have AIDS, but that you are infected with the virus and are at increased risk of developing AIDS at some time in the future.

All test results are required to be treated confidentially. They will be reported by the laboratory to the insurer. If the test results are negative, no routine notification is sent to the applicant. If the test results are reported by the laboratory as being positive, the applicant is entitled to this information if requested.

In the event the test is positive and the applicant is denied coverage because of this fact, and he or she may request the reason for the denial, the insurer may require the applicant to name a physician in order to receive the information.

If the applicant does not have a private physician the results will be sent by registered mail with delivery restricted to the applicant only.

FATHER FARRELL'S WISDOM

'Real greatness'

From Carmel Pine Cone
Dec. 31, 1981

Oct. 31 was Halloween, the eve of All Hollows or All Saints' Day when ordinary commons-a-garden good men and women are honored for their holy and saintly lives.

Many people call themselves Christians but the real meaning of Christianity has missed them by a country mile.

The world honors and considers men successful and even happy when they are rich and powerful. However, real greatness should be measured by what a man gives, especially when he gives of himself generously. He must also be gentle, patient, searching for peace in his own home, his community and in the world.

He must be willing to give venturesome love which means he will be ready to get involved in a good cause, despite the risk.

Most people look upon "saints" as plaster statues or stained glass windows, remote and detached, whereas they are really ordinary people doing their job in life and doing it well. Saints are ready to stick out their necks for others. Saints are easy to live with and enjoyable to be around.

By the bye, how does your halo fit these days? Is your harp in tune and are you playing in the right orchestra? Amen.

Is brotherhood out of style?

Your children are invited to learn what the Bible teaches about the fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man in the Christian Science Sunday School.

Any young person up to the age of twenty is welcome to visit or enroll.

Over-the-counter remedies can be dangerous if taken in combination with certain prescriptions. Elderly people especially should be aware of the risk because many take one or more prescriptions regularly. Some examples of combinations that can be harmful: Aspirin-containing products increase the risk of excessive bleeding if taken with anticoagulants (blood thinners) that are prescribed for blood-clotting problems or phlebitis. Antihistamines used by people taking anti-anxiety prescriptions may cause drowsiness, dizziness, loss of coordination and confusion. Consult your physician or pharmicist.

Ruth Burd, of Briarcliff Manor, New York, never had time to fully pursue her dream of writing for publication. At 86, after years of running a restaurant, raising a family which now includes six great-grandchildren, and experiencing several heart operations, she found time. "My body is shot...But I've got a very active imagination. I've still got all my marbles," she told an interviewer. Her projects include a novel and translation of the diary she kept as an 11-year-old as World War I swept through her home town in Eastern Europe.

Christmas in Carmel

A MEETING for all participants and interested persons in the Carmel Historical Survey will be held on Saturday, Jan. 6, at the Scout House in Carmel, between 11 a.m. and 1 p.m.

All who attend will be updated regarding new procedures, and a recently completed slide show narrated by Enid Sales and Marjory Lloyd will be featured.

The rewards of working on an interesting project such as the 1989-90 Historical Survey are obvious, as well as the delightful "extras" you don't expect.

One of these for me has been the chance to know better some great people, all working hard toward the completion of the survey in the upcoming year.

Recently Rosalee Gladney shared some memories of Carmel at Christmas, when she was a little girl. Rosalee's father was M.J. Murphy, the designer and contractor for many homes and buildings here in Carmel.

Both Rosalee and her cousin Jean Rodriguez have devoted much time and energy toward the survey, and were lucky children who spent growing years in Carmel, and have good memories of this childhood legacy.

Rosalee recalls.

"I think no one could have had a more wonderful Christmas than me and the Murphy family.

"Those days most gifts were made at home. Dad had 10 sisters, and 1 brother, so we had lots of cousins in the early days.

"I faintly remember being very young and seeing our tree with lit candles and strings of pink popcorn. The candles didn't last long. Just enough time for all to admire.

"Santa would come during the night, decorate the tree, and leave everyone a gift.

"In the very early days, Santa would leave by the backyard in his "sleigh."

"Those reindeer were noisy running through our yard at Ninth and Monte Verde streets.

"Later we learned Dad would run the horses through the yard, and that was the signal Santa had come and gone. Our barn was in the backyard.

"What a sight when we came downstairs in flannel nighties and saw the tree and packages.

"When trucks replaced horses, Santa rang a bell as he was leaving by the backdoor, just under the sleeping porch where we all slept.

"I still have the cowbell hanging near my kitchen stove that I use to call Andy and anyone else here in to dinner.

"Carmel's Christmas tree in the center of the divider at Mission and Ocean was a wonderful sight. The tree seemed loaded with lights, so it was after the town had electricity I remember. The road coming down to Ocean Avenue was only a trail at first. The view of the tree after the road was completed seemed a spectacular sight.

"On Christmas eve everyone would go to the tree in town. Our family included my twin sister, my older brother and sister, and Mother and Dad. Every child in town was there, and Santa knew everyone's name, and gave each child a gift and candy.

"There was a lot of singing, laughter, jolly people and visiting of neighbors and relatives that was fun for "kids," big and little. Santa would call out in a loud voice the name of each child who would go up to get his gifts. Sometimes the gifts he had for older folks caused the grownups to laugh and joke, and were not meant for little eyes to see. After all this excitement, it was almost sad to go back home to wait for the sleigh and reindeer."

These glimpses of earlier Carmel are of interest to me. I hope to be able to gather more observances from people who remember times, places and people from the past here in Carmel.

Plan to attend the Jan. 6th workshop, and take the time to share memories and information about early day Carmel. We hope to be able to pass on to Pine Cone readers some of these stories in the coming year.

Happy New Year, from 1989-90 Carmel Historical Survey.

Country Home Care — Small Business Of The Year

Country Home Care walked away with top honors at the recent Small Business Excellence Awards Banquet held at the Monterey Sheraton Hotel.

The awards program, sponsored by the Chamber and First National Bank of Monterey County, recognized exemplary small business owners for excellence.

Country Home Care, owned by Judy Higgerson, R.N., and Margarite Alvarez, has been in operation for 7 years. In addition to operating a residential care home in Carmel Valley, the company provides a nurses' registry for patients for care in their own home or hospital.

The company has provided hours of free consultation to groups such as Del Mesa Carmel as well as to individuals seeking advice regarding care of the elderly and ill patients. The two are preparing to release a book entitled "America's Hidden Shame" revealing the sad state of affairs in America's health care system and abuse of the elderly.

Other awards were given in four categories: Retail/Manufacturing, Professional/Service, Restaurant/Lodging, and Rookie Business of the Year.

The winners in Retail/Manufacturing included Ordway Pharmacy's Jerry Abbanat and Jack Valenti in first place; Griffith - Furniture, Elma Griffith, and Monterey Auto Supply, Ron Ferguson were the other finalists.

Selected for honors in the Professional/Service Category were Country Home Care, Judy Higgerson & Margarite Alvarez, and Tucker Van Lines, James Costa, in a tie for first place. Monterey County Bank, Charles Christeberry, and Commercial Press, Agnes Sorman were finalists.

Julio and Marie Ramirez of the Fresh tic took first place in the Restaurant/Lodging category. Other winners included Bob and Susan Negri of Giuliano's, and Mack Terra of Ichi Riki.

Recipients in the newest category, Rookie Business of the Year, were Grace Ashby of Labels in first place, Bayside Trading Company, Shirmane Jones, and Jocelyne C. Helen Plummer and Josephine Billante, were finalists.

Other sponsors for the gala affair included The Crossroads, Western Equipment Leasing, Pebble Beach Company, and Fisherman's Grotto.

Over seventy nominations were submitted for judging.

Watson Chosen For Honors

Paul Watson

Paul Watson, owner and manager of P.S. I Do Windows, was recently selected to receive honors as Member of the Month.

Watson's company offers full service window washing for both residential and commercial, including new construction. He offers special rates for monthly and bi-monthly accounts, but also performs one-time window washing services.

A former restaurateur, Watson owned a succession of restaurants in Arizona and California. "I always joined the Chambers because it proved profitable for my businesses," he said.

A newcomer to Monterey, Watson said joining the Chamber here was one of the first things he did. "The most important thing to me about my Chamber membership is the friends I have made along the way," he said. "I've met so many wonderful people. Besides that, I can also attribute up to 50 percent of my business to Chamber referrals.

"Being single, I enjoy the social opportunities like the mixers and the special dinners and luncheons," he continued.

Watson has been actively involved in a number of committees including Small Business and Membership. This year he chairs the Workshops and Seminars Committee.

A poet and songwriter, Watson has won several poetry awards. Watson lives with his son, Clint, in Seaside.

Stars ready to 'set sail' at the Gourmet Gala

CELEBRITY CHEFS for the 1990 March of Dimes Gourmet Gala come from the worlds of entertainment, sports, business, art, philanthropy, wine and publishing.

And their recipes will be judged by some of the most prestigious names in food and wine. The event, "Gourmet Gala Sails Away," will be Jan. 20 in the San Carlos Ballroom of the Monterey Sheraton.

Among the celebrities who've agreed to cook for charity are entertainment personalities Jaclyn Smith; Pat Morita and his daughter, Erin; Artie Johnson; Ruth Buzzi; John Clark Gable; Richard Lloyd; Chad McQueen; Kent Perkins; Johnnie Ray; Giselle McKenzie and Lauren Tewes.

Also donning their chef's toque for the occasion: Bill Agee, chairman and CEO, Morrison Knudsen Co., and his wife, Mary Cunningham Agee, executive director, "The Nurturing Network" and author of "Powerplay"; public relations consultant David Armanasco; Ernie Barnes, artist and former pro football player with the Denver Broncos; plastic surgeon, Dr. Roger Bartels; Peter and Barbara Blackstock, owners of Victory Toyota in Monterey; Allison Stilwell Cameron, artist and author; Daniel Durand, director of food and beverage, Royal Viking Line; Dorothy Kingsley Durney and Christine Durney Armanasco, proprietors, Durney Vineyard; Riki Ellison, San Francisco 49ers and political analyst; Sheila Ellison, publisher; Brooks and Kate Firestone, proprietors Firestone Vineyard and J. Carey Cellars; Jim Josoff, Big Sur activist; Tom Oliver, president Pebble Beach Co.; Jonathan Price, chairman, March of Dimes board of directors; Hans Skalagaard, marine artist, and his wife Mignon Diana Skalagaard; plastic surgeon Dr. Daniel Strickland; novelist Rosemary Rogers.

The celebrity judges are Bert Cutino, co-owner of the award-winning Sardine Factory in Monterey and Certified Executive Chef member of the American Academy of Chefs; Jeremiah Tower, owner and chef of Stars in San Francisco; Craig Claiborne, food editor emeritus of the New York Times and cookbook author; Betsy Balsley, food editor of the Los Angeles Times; Robert Bussinger, vice president and general maanger at the Ventana Inn in Big Sur; Vicky Sebastiani, proprietor of Viansa Winery; Henry Lapuyade, owner of Marcel et Henri Charcuterie Francaise in San Francisco; Bryan Miller, restaurant critic for the New York Times; Lois Dwan, cookbook author and former restaurant critic for the Los Angeles Times; Tim Zagat, publisher of the Zagat Restaurant and Hotel Surveys; and James Villas, food and wine editor for Town and Country Magazine and cookbook author.

Actress Elinor Donahue and her husband, producer Harry Ackerman, for many years celebrity chefs at the Gala, are serving as honorary co-chairmen. Artist Cole Weston is master of ceremonies.

"Gourmet Gala Sails Away" will be this year's theme. T. Scott Moore, theme chairman for the fifth consecutive year, says he plans for the decor to draw on the elegance and sophistication of cruise ships as portrayed in that witty Noel Coward musical, "Sail Away," or TV's "Love Boat."

The interior designers and architects who will design the kitchen environments, says Linda Lamb, head of the kitchen design committee, will be inspired by ports of call around the world. The designers include Lamb, Scott Moore, Robert Benton, Nancy McInich, Joseph Rock, Nancy Schmitz-Bowersox, Judith Lehman, Rudy Reate, Andrew M. Shafer, Charlene Matoza and Linda Williams.

Sponsors for this year's gala are Monterey Rolls Royce, Mills Distributing Co., Saks Fifth Avenue; Morse and Associates and Financial Center Mortgage; The Nunes Co. Inc.; Household Card Services; Country Home Care; elan at Pebble Beach; Stahl Motor Co.; Pebble Beach Resorts; Victory Toyota and Rykoff Sexton.

Artie Early will serve as chairman of the Gala for the fifth consecutive year.

Other committee chairmen are Kay Nunez and Bill Cater, development; Charlene Etienne, celebrities; Mark and Jennifer Lupo, hospitality; Don Ferch, Tracy and Pat Gentry and James Watson, cooking; Linda Lamb, kitchen design; Carol Benton, entertainment; Mary Alice Cerrito, invitation, reservations, printing and program; Tia Gindick, publicity; Sherrie McCullough, silent auction.

The event, which in 1989 netted $60,000 for the March of Dimes' research and services, puts an ecletic collection of celebrity cooks into 12 environments created by local interior designers and architects. During a cocktail reception provided by the peninsula's top restaurants and wineries, the cooks cook, the traditionally sell-out (at $150 per person) crowd observes, and the panel of celebrity judges judge. Dinner — the 12 celebrity recipes as prepared in larger quantities in the Monterey Sheraton kitchen — and dancing follow.

The March of Dimes, now in its 51st year, is a partnership of volunteers and professionals which has pioneered programs that include diagnosis and treatment of babies before and after birth, genetic counseling, and early and regular prenatal care to prevent birth defects.

ACTOR TOM Selleck is the latest celebrity scheduled to compete in the 1990 AT&T Pebble Beach National Pro-Am, which will be played on the Monterey Peninsula Jan. 29 through Feb. 4.

Selleck, best known as private investigator Thomas Magnum in the long-running television series "Magnum, P.I.," starred in the hit film, "Three Men and a Baby." He is currently appearing in the recently released movie, "An Innocent Man."

"I think it's great we continue to get newcomers interested in playing," said Lou Russo, executive director of the tournament. "The combination of Tom Selleck and Michael Keaton, along with our returning celebrities and pro golfers, should give us some exciting golf action at the tournament this year."

JAZZ TIDES

By John Detro

Winter light

MAY YOU KNOW holiday joys. Winter's official start (12/21) introduces the season of warmth sought and fern-fresh contemplation found. Could it be true that every homeless woman's journey has Marylight therein? You bet. We need all the help we can get, Godhead knows. There are no losses to cut or count, for nothing of value ever goes away.

WHILE DOWNTOWN Santa Cruz works toward post-earthquake recovery, Kuumbwa Jazz Center's leadership signals firm faith. Scheduling released by Development Director Judith Broadhurst shows today that the facility will continue booking talent of high quality.

Right now, Kuumbwa staffers and volunteers enjoy their annual break. The next show (1/8) will spotlight a knockout group headed up by trombonists Steve Turre and Robin Eubanks. Kei Akagi (piano), Tommy Campbell (drums), Charnett Moffett (bass).

Then it's the Louis Hayes Quintet (1/15). The superb drummer travels with Charles Tolliver (trumpet), Gary Bartz (saxes), Ronnie Matthews (piano), Clint Houston (bass).

Genius tenorman Joe Henderson comes in next (1/22). Backup crew TBA.

Pianist Art Lande has signed on too (1/29). His bunch includes reedman Paul McCandless of the band Oregon along with trombonist Wayne Wallace, Bill Douglas (bass), Eddie Marshall (drums).

February's headliners: Drummer Paul Motian fronting a trio, vocalist Sheila Jordan with Harvie Swartz on bass, Astrud Gilberto. More on each presentation as each draws near.

Judith says the second annual Carnaval Santa Cruz (benefit for Kuumbwa and Tandy Beal Dance Company) will happen April 6-7. Kuumbwa's Jazz Auction will occur during May.

On quite another hand. When the Central Park jogger was raped and beaten, her young attackers labeled their brutal acts this way: wilding. The rawness of urban ratpacks on such runs was brought to Kuumbwa by guitarist James Blood Ulmer, drummer Calvin Weston, Jamaladeen Tacuma on electric bass. Heavy metal buffs dug the aggression and literally unbearable sound level. Hearing no beauty at all in the trio's first four non-tunes, I joined other walkaways.

Ulmer roomed with Ornette Coleman and studied that man's freeform "harmolodics." The guitar was tuned for some haunting peripheral effects (chordal aftertaste) but these usually were obliterated by volume settings. Some of Ornette's writing shows real compassion for the human condition. To my ear, Ulmer's single long set celebrated cruelty and cynicism. His manager said he does not record with this configuration.

queries from folks who'd like doing jazz shows at the community outlet. Program Director Susan Dobkin says she has two weekly slots open right now. Dial 375-7275 and ask for Susan or Operations Director Ace Lopez.

• KAZU jazz broadcaster Jim Bourne put together that excellent series on big bands. Now Jim's letter reports that he may showcase songwriters — Harold Arlen, Jerome Kern, Matt Dennis, so on. My vote: definite aye.

• Sad quote from Pat Henry, who founded KJAZ in 1959 and sold it 21 years later. "I think that KJAZ is the end of the line for commercial bebop radio. Excepting college radio, I fear for the format's continuance. It's the only hobby more costly than owning a string of polo ponies."

• KUSP-FM of Santa Cruz slates a Sunday Night Special on New Year's Eve (9-11). Blues guitarist Ronnie Earl, recorded live by the station remote crew in September at O.T.'s. Ronnie "sizzled during the first set," says a program note, and "enjoyed himself so much that he played an extra-long second set with numerous special guests onstage."

• KUSP's Pete Fallico kindly sent along cassettes of his brilliant two-hour special on the late Eddie Jefferson, my favorite male jazz vocalist. Sure would be fine if he'd air it again for those who missed the first time — with plenty of notice beforehand.

IT'S WORTH reporting today that Ken Hahn was right all along. For months the KRML deejay has been praising vocalist Claudia Gomez. Then she brought her Brazilian bag into Monterey Bay Club and pulled out delightful sets.

Ken listened at a front table as Miss Gomez got strong support from veteran Anglo players out of San Francisco's Latin music community: Jeff Buenz on lead guitar, percussionist Dennis Broughton, David Belove (electric bass), David Rokeach (traps). Claudia's rhythm guitar completed the bright sound.

Especially notable were her strength and range. Not for Claudia the fetching, relatively small voice that calls up one's protective instincts (Astrud Gilberto and the much more recent, one-name Brazilian stylists Kenia and Simone). Miss Gomez has that smoky, pensive sound when she wishes — and the empowered projection that communicates personal clarity plus deep joy. She could be one helluva blues singer — and I say so as a flat-out compliment.

Claudia's own song intros explained the extra voltage: she was born in Colombia and came under Caribbean musical influences. "My Spanish is better than my Brazilian Portuguese." One celebrative and beautiful tune was adapted from Afro-Columbian folk material.

This item's on her new cassette (Arete Records) — along with originals and compositions by such Brazilian adepts as Horta, Donato, Dori Caymmi. Interestingly, KJAZ taped her live at Kimball's for producer Bud Spangler's Sunday night series, then turned over the masters. The pleasing package costs $10 and may be ordered directly from the artist: Claudia Gomez — PO box 52063 — Palo Alto 94303.

Brazilian linkage? She seemed influenced as well by late superstar Elis Regina and confirmed the point readily — with a wide smile, in fact — between sets.

Good times at Monterey Bay Club on Thursday night (12/21) with fine young singer Kitty Margolis, Dick Hindman at the piano, Vince Lateano on drums, bassist John Wiitala. Otherwise: R&B tenorman Terry Hanck and his Soulrockers (12/22-23), closed (12/24-25), Jack and Ed Show (12/26), Rob Lautz on vibes and guitarist Tom Bockhold (12/27), Ken Arconti's blues unit (12/29-30). On New Year's Eve, Roger Eddy will front his Mini Big Band — $10 cover.

KSBW-TV schedules something fine on Christmas Eve (10-11). The feed from NBC will bring Alvin Ailey American Dance Theater into area homes. Ailey loved jazz and fused the music with breakthrough choreography; he died on this month's first day of a rare blood disease at age 58.

Bill Cosby will host the special. It features troupe members performing dances created by Ailey, songs from Roberta Flack, a filmed interview with the late gentleman.

Ailey's masterpieces include celebrations of Duke Elllington and a powerful blues suite. Hymns also were important to his designs.

THE DOCUMENTARY film Thelonius Monk: Straight — No Chaser brings truth. It shows via nightclub and concert footage his great creativity as jazz composer and pianist. Certain haunting sequences reveal too the deeply troubled individual.

Clint Eastwood (executive producer), allowed Charlotte Zwerin and Bruce Ricker to finish their remarkable effort by lobbying Warner Brothers for support. Dream Theater in New Monterey kicked off the title's local and limited run last Friday. Recommended most highly.

The late Monk's rich, bold writing gains interpretation by such fine players as Charles Rouse, Phil Woods, Johnny Griffin, Tommy Flanagan, Barry Harris, Selected intimates talk about his periods of mental self-removal — so pronounced at times that he didn't know his own son. The storied Monk dance steps — onstage, down the street, in airports — may be recognized here as autism-type repetitions.

But it's by no means an ugly film. Monk made important music — it romps and glows in the ear. Fellow musicians treat him with sincere and even tender respect. And he had the love of two women: wife Nellie and the wealthy jazz backer known worldwide as Baroness Nica.

The point's made that Nellie never felt threatened by Monk's extended stays with Nica. Rather, she was relieved to have someone share responsibility "when he was being difficult." Powerful image: Nellie and Nica seated side by side at Monk's Manhattan funeral.

It's not at all hyperbolic to call Thelonius one of the Black American Mozarts. This team (Eastwood, Zwerin, Ricker, photography director Christian Blackwood), must be thanked for cutting through myths and celebrating the genius that transcends pain.

The lovable Bear of Very-Little-Brain but Very-Good-Intentions will be played by Carl Palme. Laura McEvoy plays Christopher Robin.

Frankie & Johnny in the Claire de Lune

The GroveMont Theater has opened its 1989-90 season with Tarence McNally's Frankie and Johnny in the Claire de Lune.

Final performances are set 8 p.m. Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Dec. 21-23. Cafe seating opens one hour before showtime with a variety of sandwiches, hors d'oeuvres, desserts, beer, wine and soft drinks available before the show and at intermission.

Directed by GroveMont resident director Sid Cato, the production features a two-person cast: GroveMont's artist-in-residence John Rousseau and Monterey actress Kathy Deskin-Jacobs.

The production is a humorous and romantic love story that "intertwines classical music, the dread of loneliness, the fear of commitment, and the need to hold and be held into a beautiful and unforgettable chronicle in these alienated times," says local dramatist Dan Gotch.

Due to strong language and some nudity, the production has been rated R by the management and no children will be allowed. Tickets are $8.50 general admission; $7 for students, seniors and military Thursdays; $9.50 and $8 Fridays and Saturdays, and can be obtained by calling Center Stage Ticketing at 649-5561. For reservations call 649-6852.

The GroveMont Theater Arts Center is at 320 Hoffman in New Monterey.

The pain of a heart attack begins in your chest. But it doesn't end there.

A heart attack may start with pressure, fullness, squeezing or pain in the middle of your chest. It can spread to your shoulders, neck or arms. Dizziness, fainting, sweating and shortness of breath may even occur. If you experience any of these symptoms for more than two minutes, call for emergency medical help immediately. The longer you wait, the more you risk dying. Which can be very painful for everyone who cares about you.

Bring own water to Molera Park

Drinking or potable water is no longer available in the Andrew Molera State Park, located on the Big Sur Coast.

In the past, potable water was provided by "water buffaloes." The old military metal water tanks on wheels no longer meet state health standards for drinking water and have been removed from the park.

Campers and day users should plan on bringing their own drinking water. Drinking water is available at Pfeiffer Big Sur State Park and Julia Pfeiffer Burns State Park.

For further information, contact the Big Sur District Office at 667-2315.

Artists join in all-day draw

The Pacific Grove Art Center, 568 Lighthouse Ave. in Pacific Grove, provides the setting for all-day art draws the first Saturday of each month.

Artists in all media and skill levels are invited to work at the center for all or part of the day. They will share the cost of professional art models and work independently at easels and tables provided by the center. There is a potluck lunch for those who wish to participate.

The fee is $16 for the day or $9 for half a day, with draw hours set 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. the first Saturday of each month.

For details, call 649-4657 or 375-2208.

Camp hosts sought for Big Sur coast

State parks along the scenic Big Sur coast have several openings for volunteer camp hosts — either couples or individuals.

Camp host duties range from greeting visitors and working in a visitor center to collecting fees, maintenance and other duties involved in operating a campground. Camp hosts must supply their own camping vehicles. Campsites are provided, with hookups for water and electricity. Each camp host must agree to work 20 hours a week and stay at least two months.

Persons interested in becoming camping hosts in the state parks of the Big Sur coast may contact Chief Ranger Hayden Sohm, 667-2316, or write to Big Sur District, Pfeiffer Big Sur State Park No. 1, Big Sur, CA 93920.

A new guide to Off-Highway Vehicle Areas in California is available at State Vehicular Recreation Areas.

The guide includes a map and listing of off-highway areas managed by the California Department of Parks and Recreation, the U.S. Forest Service, the Bureau of Land Management, as well as areas managed by counties, cities or other jurisdictions.

The guide also has a section with safety and preparedness tips and legal requirements for the use of off-highway vehicles in California.
